

PAPER CITY

DALLAS

JANUARY 2006

STYLE | FASHION | SOCIAL

dress or a jacket that's seen better days, and Q will replicate it in only four weeks ... Dallas girl

Leah Gormly's stunning jewelry line, LMG&Co. is getting some serious buzz. Her organic, textural pieces, right, are in stores nationwide; you can pick up your own bauble at the Dallas Fashion Incubator store at 1623 Main Street ... Now there's another reason to visit Matthew Trent's Uptown studio at 2508 Maple Avenue: his new gift store,

The T Shop. The spot features fun (and reasonably priced) gift items — think wares from fashion-jewelry designers such as Shelby Katz and Joyce McCulloch, and delicious goodies from Judy's Nuts. Sarah Eveans must-have hobos, and to-die-for denim jackets and skirts, as well as the playful interpretations of tees and jeans that put Fiorucci on the go-go fashion map. $8 to $50, at Target. Jenny Antill

pizzas and lost the "N West. The Char Sui B Our recom

>V

What

Party: Chir Dining Do Party: The Style Page Design: Ale Design No Feature Ho Party: Pap

witty, wonderful world of Jonathan

Bravura Brushstrokes from Ibe

Southern Methodist University's Meadows Museum is the second and final step in the development of 19th-century Spanish painting, "Prelude to Spanish Modernism," at masterworks culled from major European and American museums and no less diverse in subject matter — from landscapes to portraits, impressionism to symbolism — featuring big names like J.M.W. Turner, Goya, and Velázquez, as well as lesser-known artists like Juan de Madrazo, Ignacio Zuloaga and, of course, the inimitable Picasso (represented by five works, including his Blue Period La Celestine (The Procuress). Information 214.768.2516; meadowsmuseum.org

dallas